NARÚ • CAN DO

the hard REALITY

11,241

children under five were diagnosed with acute malnutrition in Guatemala during the first six months of 2026. Those are the reported cases—how many others are there?

Alta Verapaz, and Seńahu in particular, continues to have one of the highest burdens of child malnutrition in Latin America.

1 in 2 Guatemalan children under five experience chronic malnutrition

534 Alta Verapaz acute-malnutrition cases reported by the end of March

7 of 16 national acute-malnutrition deaths were in Alta Verapaz

Our Impact: Nourish

364

children enrolled in the Narú Nutrition Program

123

children improve from severe to moderate malnutrition

140

children reach a healthy weight

Nutrition Support reaches nearly 3× more children

(compared to January-June 2025)

THE GAP REMAINS

More children need earlier care than Narú can yet reach. With a population of 1 million children, the scale of need remains far larger than current resources allow.

MATERNAL NUTRITION PROGRAM

177 mothers entered postpartum nutrition care

When a newborn is malnourished, Narú nourishes the mother so she can nourish her baby. Nutrition, breastfeeding support, and close follow-up help mothers increase their milk supply and support their babies' growth.

Meet 11 of the babies whose mothers Narú began supporting this year.

Our Impact: equip through education

2,041
family-training attendances at centers and mobile clinics

238
pregnancy education attendances

649
home visits carry training into daily family life

391
attendances at midwife-training sessions

DID YOU KNOW...
Home visits are often where lasting change happens because staff can assess how families are implementing on-site trainings.

260+
midwives & parteros gather to collaborate on National Day of the Midwife

Young People Are Building Healthier Futures

New! Youth Program expands to Senahú and launches at Ochoch Charmak

675 youth-education attendances

SUPPORTING ADOLESCENT MOTHERS

In partnership with Asociación de Amigos del Desarrollo y la Paz (ADP), Narú strengthens referral pathways for pregnant teenagers affected by sexual abuse. Many of these young expectant mothers are at risk of malnutrition, which can also affect the health and development of their babies—early detection is essential.

Our Impact: Reach

New! Medical clinic opens at Ochoch Charmak

7,728
total visits to Narú center & sites

2,444
individuals receive clinical care and family planning services

27
mobile clinics bring services closer to remote families

119

THE GAP
A center can practically serve families within about a three-hour walk. Communities beyond that radius remain out of reach.

Connecting Communities

New Medical Clinic

Prenatal monitoring and maternal healthcare are now available closer to home, alongside basic care for children and families.

Solar Power + Internet

New infrastructure improves daily life for resident staff and strengthens communication across Narú sites.

Field Access

Thanks to a private donation, this all-terrain vehicle helps our team and supplies travel more safely through difficult conditions.

kits delivered

DID YOU KNOW...
Apart from equipment essential in deliveries, there were practical items too - like head lanterns to find village houses in the dark.

THIS YEAR

Ochoch Charmak introduces turnip peanut, passion fruit, and sesame. Ochoch Solly introduces broccoli, cauliflower, spearmint, and Ixbut— a traditional medicinal plant used for generations to help mothers increase milk production after childbirth.

Growing Food Security

Demonstration gardens and towers teach families how to grow nutrient-rich food in small spaces and challenging conditions. New crops and expanded seed production give families practical knowledge they can use season after season.

Partnerships that Build Sustainability

USANA FOUNDATION

donates Garden Towers to families with limited space, bringing fresh food closer to home

HELP International

Turn Today's Gaps
INTO TOMORROW'S REACH

•NARÚ WISH LIST•

Casa Materna

A planned residence near the medical center for women with known high-risk pregnancies in their final weeks. Land and approvals are still underway.

Next Ochoch Site

Extend Narú toward high-birth-rate communities with maternal-mortality concerns that fall beyond today's practical walking radius.

Ultrasound Training

Expand ultrasound training for nurses and midwives using donated equipment and tablets.
