OUR MISSION

Our mission is to empower mothers and families in Alta Verapaz, Guatemala to break the cycle of hunger and infant mortality in the Narú "Can Do" way.

We do this by providing nutrition, education, and life-saving tools that build lasting self-reliance.

Highlights

YOUTH PROGRAM LAUNCH

A New Generation

In January 2025, we launched our Youth Health & Nutrition Program in partnership with Instituto Básico de Tzalamila in Sepalau. 83 young adults received education on health, nutrition, and family planning — directly addressing the rising rate of teenage pregnancies in the region.

KEY PARTNERSHIPS

Church Backs Nutrition

A new partnership with The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints supports our Incaparina and infant formula programs, strengthening our nutritional safety net. We now have 20 collaborations with organizations and institutions.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

Mobile Clinics Expand

8 mobile clinics served 53 remote communities, bringing healthcare directly to families who need it most. Our clinical team provided care, family planning, and nutritional support across Alta Verapaz.

OUR SITES

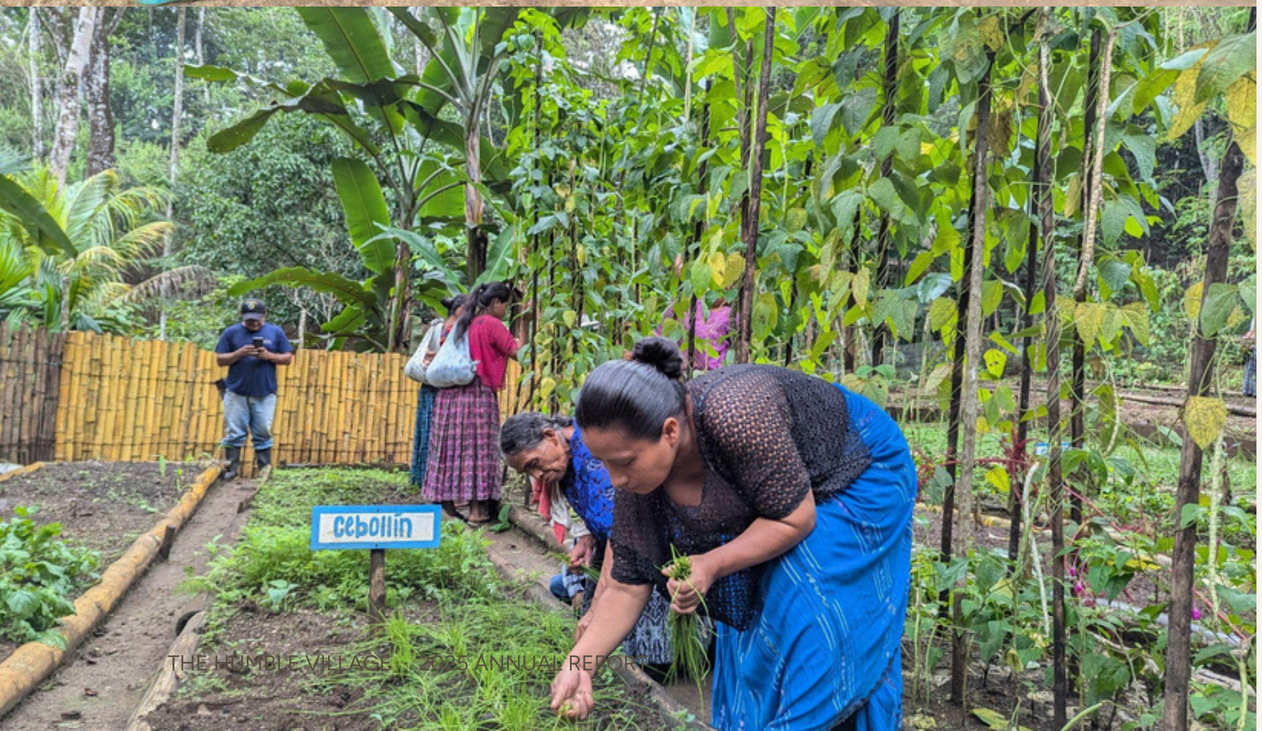
Narú Center

A health and well-being resource for all

Small gardens with big potential for growth — our training sessions take families from seed to table with cooking demonstrations and practical recipes.

We partnered with ADP on sexual abuse prevention for teenagers and with CARE International to support young mothers with micro-business skills.

The Center remains the heart of our operations, providing clinical care, nutrition programs, and community education to the surrounding communities.



OUR SITES

Ochoch Charmak

Training in a tropical climate

The aim: eggs for everyone — 44 chicken pairs were provided to families, building sustainable protein sources for children.

A groundbreaking pilot midwife program launched in partnership with Ministry of Health nurses for maternal and newborn care.

After storm damage, a new roof was installed in December. The wood construction is being transformed into a full clinic to serve the community year-round.

OUR SITES

Ochoch Solly

Training in the cold lands

Tackling teenage pregnancies — our Youth Program launched in January 2025 with Instituto Básico de Tzalamila, equipping 83 young adults with health and nutrition education.

The long wait for water is over — 12 neighboring families were connected to potable water in Sepalau, with 90 more families receiving water in partnership with Adicay.

First harvest shared with the elderly — 36 elderly from Sepalau joined the harvest at Ochoch Solly, building intergenerational community bonds.

A New Preventative Focus

With a 38% increase in pregnancy complications, we launched a Pilot Program for at-risk pregnancies. Between April and October 2025, 40 mothers from Charmak and the Center participated in comprehensive prenatal care.

Supporting Frontline Midwives

18 midwives from 12 communities joined our pilot training program with monthly sessions and birthing kits provided to ensure safer deliveries in remote areas.

PROGRAM FOCUS

Food Production

Simple changes made all the difference. With agronomist support, we adopted chemical-free practices, lime use, and compost systems rooted in ancient Maya traditions. New crops included broad beans, peas, green beans, eggplant, plantains, and mustard greens.

We overhauled the Solly kitchen garden, doubling walkway sizes so families can access all 22 varieties of produce. 304 kitchen gardens were established across our communities, building food sovereignty one family at a time.

IMPACT STORIES

Angel’s Story

Angel was admitted to our milk program in 2021. His mother Karla was only 14 years old. During his evaluation, Angel was found to be severely underweight and suffering from scabies.

He went to live with his maternal grandmother, who took responsibility for raising him. Karla entered our family planning program.

At six months, Angel transitioned from formula to Incaparina. He received medication for his health conditions and later graduated at a healthy weight.

At four years old, he is strong and thriving. His mother is deeply grateful for the support provided during his time at Narú.

Jhordan's Journey

Jhordan entered our Incaparina program in August 2024 in critical condition — weighing only 4.3kg (9.4lbs) at 17 months old — with a urinary infection and diarrhea.

With consistent nutritional support and medical treatment, he gradually improved. When he developed pneumonia in December, it was successfully treated at our Solly clinic.

In September 2025, Jhordan left the program weighing 10.4kg (22.9lbs). He is now healthy and developing well.

Baby Evelin

Feliza came to our center seeking support for her newborn Evelin — just two months old and weighing only 2.8 kg (6.16 lbs), severely malnourished.

Struggling to produce breastmilk, Feliza had been feeding Evelin coffee and corn flour — foods lacking essential nutrients for infants.

Since joining the program, Feliza receives Incaparina to support her nutrition, while Evelin is closely monitored as she continues her recovery.

CELEBRATING PROGRESS

Our Graduates

Over 200 children have graduated from our nutrition program. Here are 12 of them — each one a testament to what consistent care and community support can achieve.
